

TIME WARNER CABLE REACHES 9 MILLION RESIDENTIAL HIGH-SPEED DATA CUSTOMERS

El Segundo, February 16, 2010 – Time Warner Cable today announced that it recently reached 9 million residential high-speed data subscribers. Now more than 62% of Time Warner Cable’s customers subscribe to its residential high-speed data service. Time Warner Cable ended 2009 as the 3rd largest ISP in the United States in terms of the total number of residential and commercial broadband customers.

“This is a great milestone for Time Warner Cable, and it further proves that our customers enjoy the speed and content our HSD products deliver, as well as the value seen when bundling this service with our video and phone offerings,” said Landel Hobbs, COO of Time Warner Cable. “High Speed Data continues to be a growing part of our business and we look to keep adding new features and further enhance speeds as we move through 2010.”

Time Warner Cable offers different high speed data services to both residential and commercial customers, including its most popular service, Road Runner High Speed Online. For more information about Time Warner Cable’s High Speed Data Services visit www.timewarnercable.com or www.twcbc.com.
